Subject: RE: For the personal attention of the Chief Constable - when may I expect a reply?

Good afternoon Mr Francis

Thank you for your correspondence which has been passed from Postmaster to the Chief Constable's office.

I hereby acknowledge receipt and can confirm this is the first time your correspondence has been received by the Chief Constable's office.

I would like to confirm that the Chief Constable will not be responding personally to your correspondence and I have been advised to highlight that if you wish to make a formal complaint please so do via the correct channels of the Professional Standards Department at Hampshire Constabulary. I understand your Freedom of Information request has been acknowledged appropriately.

Kind regards
Amanda

Subject: For the personal attention of the Chief Constable - when may I expect a reply?

Dear Sir,

I first sent this message and attachments to you, for the personal attention of the Chief Constable, a week ago.

I know that it was received because I was sent a commendably prompt acknowledgement of the Freedom of Information request included in the email.

When might I expect to receive at least an acknowledgement if not from the Chief Constable herself, then at least from her office, and if only at that stage only an acknowledgement, confirmation of when I might expect her substantive reply?

This is, after all, not just about millions of pounds being wasted but also about injuries and collisions increasing when cameras are in use.

Yours sincerely,

Idris Francis
